Teen Photography Workshops

with professional photographers ...

Yoshikazu Aono

launched his career as a photo-journalist when he worked as a photographer's assistant for Life Magazine during the 1964

Olympics in Tokyo. He emigrated to the U.S. at the age of 27 and covered some of the most historic events of the tumultuous 1960's, including Woodstock and the 1968 Democratic National Convention in Chicago.

Josephine Dvorken

received a BFA in photography from the Univ. of New Mexico. Since moving to Ridgewood in 1999, she has specialized in studio and street portraits. A collection of photos she has taken on the streets of Ridgewood, called "Familiar Strangers," has been exhibited in Ridgewood and at the Umbrella Arts Gallery in NYC.

Learn and be inspired by experienced photographers as well as your peers. Each workshop will provide a relaxed and supportive environment for sharing photos, discussing equipment and techniques, and taking new pictures on group outings within walking distance of the library.
